Summary

The Ministry of Economy and Finance will resume handing out Cepanim certificates from Tuesday 13 October, including at its Chiriquí point; appointments missed on 9 and 12 October are rescheduled to Wednesday 14 October.

Details (summary of the article)

According to La Prensa, the Ministry of Economy and Finance (MEF) is restarting delivery of the Cepanim certificates (negotiable payment certificates for late-interest claims) on Tuesday 13 October, after suspending them because of Friday's earthquake. In Panama City, service continues at Megápolis Outlets and the Avesa building. Beneficiaries whose appointments fell on Friday 9 October or Monday 12 October will be attended on Wednesday 14 October, keeping their original time slots, and at Megápolis the certificates for both dates will be available all week for anyone who cannot come on Wednesday. Service also resumes at the points in Chiriquí, Bocas del Toro, Darién, Colón and Panamá Oeste, where the undelivered certificates from 9 and 12 October can be collected throughout the week. In Veraguas, Coclé, Los Santos and Herrera delivery will only restart once the buildings are cleared and authorised for use. Residents with a pending appointment should plan to go during this week.
