Summary

SINAPROC is integrating its digital platform with Panamá Conecta to track humanitarian aid to earthquake-affected families from first report to case closure.

Details (summary of the article)

SINAPROC reported progress on inter-institutional coordination to improve traceability of humanitarian aid by integrating its digital platform with Panamá Conecta, so affected people can be identified, their needs followed up and the progress of assistance verified from the first report to delivery and case closure. The step was discussed at a working meeting with the vice-minister of the Presidency, Virna Luque, the vice-minister of Economy and Finance, Eida Gabriela Sáiz, AIG sub-administrator Francisco Guinard and Yessica Cáceres of the Presidential Goals Secretariat, received by SINAPROC deputy director Malitzie Rivera and her technical team. Records would be linked by identity-card number and geographic references to spot duplicates and pending cases and to follow each stage, from citizen report and field inspection to damage assessment, allocation of resources and delivery of aid, including house repair or reconstruction. The field platform works offline, syncs later and includes photographs; personal-data protection, technical validation of damage and each institution's eligibility criteria were stressed. Next steps include a first integration of records, periodic updates and a possible monitoring dashboard covering shelters and transport needs.
