

URGENT OFFICIAL NOTICE

IMHPA watch for rain, thunderstorms and winds, 22-25 October

|            |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
|------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| When       | 2026-10-22 04:10 to 2026-10-25 11:59                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        |
| Where      | Panama (nationwide watch)                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
| Source     | gn_boquete                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                  |
| Outlet     | Telemetro                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |
| Published  | 2026-10-22 07:15-05:00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| Discovered | 2026-10-22 08:00-05:00                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| Link       | https://www.telemetro.com/nacionales/clima-panama-hoy-donde-se-esperan-lluvias-y-tormentas-este-jueves-22-octubre-n6096134/amp |

Summary

Telemetro reports IMHPA/SINAPROC forecasts of heavy rain, thunderstorms and gusts on Thursday 22 October 2026, with Chiriquí (Tierras Altas, Boquete, Bugaba, David) under green alert and yellow alert in Soná, Mariato and Tonosí.

Details (summary of the article)

According to Telemetro, Panama faces unstable weather on Thursday 22 October 2026, with heavy rain, lightning storms and wind gusts possible in several regions, per IMHPA and SINAPROC. SINAPROC Risk Alert Map No. 7 keeps a yellow alert for Soná and Mariato (Veraguas) and Tonosí (Los Santos), and a green alert for Chiriquí including Tierras Altas, Boquete, Bugaba and David, plus Bocas del Toro, the Ngäbe-Buglé comarca, Colón, Coclé, Herrera, Panamá, Panamá Oeste, Darién and the other comarcas. Rain is expected in central and southern Veraguas, Tonosí and nearby areas, the Chiriquí highlands and lowlands, and in Panamá, Panamá Oeste and Colón in the afternoon and evening. Main risks are sudden river and stream rises, flooding, landslides and falling trees or poles. Drivers are urged to slow down, keep distance, avoid flooded streets and take extra care on mountain roads and stretches of the Interamericana. People living near rivers, streams or slopes should follow official bulletins.

Original (es)

Clima en Panamá hoy: dónde se esperan lluvias y tormentas este jueves 22 de octubre

Clima en Panamá hoy: dónde se esperan lluvias y tormentas este jueves 22 de octubre Telemetro