Summary

The director of Panama's National Migration Service inspected construction of a new housing complex at the temporary migration reception station in Los Planes de Gualaca, Chiriqui, which will also be able to serve as an emergency shelter.

Details (summary of the article)

Roger Mojica Rivera, director general of the National Migration Service, toured the Temporary Migration Reception Station at Los Planes de Gualaca in Chiriqui to check on the housing complex being built on the station's grounds. He was accompanied by staff of the Chiriqui regional office and those responsible for the project. The works form part of the government's 'Plan Firmeza' and are intended to improve care for people in transit. Officials say the new facilities will also be able to operate as an assistance centre during emergencies or natural disasters, which could matter for Chiriqui residents in a disaster. The agency says it continues to strengthen its infrastructure nationwide to give a more efficient and dignified response. No completion date was given in the announcement.
