Summary

Panama's National Immigration Service is helping with earthquake relief, including delivering dry food, cleaning and personal hygiene products to the collection centre at the Chiriqui Governor's Office for distribution to affected families.

Details (summary of the article)

The National Immigration Service is taking part in relief work after the earthquake of Friday 9 October, collecting and moving supplies and supporting hospitals. At Panama Pacifico, immigration inspectors help receive and move supplies and stretchers. At the Bingos Nacionales collection centre and in Parque Omar, staff load pallets of water and other supplies bound for Herrera province. In Chiriqui, the regional immigration office is delivering dry food, cleaning items and personal hygiene products to the collection centre at the Governor's Office for distribution among families affected by the quake. In Los Santos and Herrera, support tents were set up at the Joaquin Pablo Franco and Nelson Collado hospitals, where immigration units help distribute water. At the Panama Pacifico collection centre, supporting the Office of the First Lady, staff count and sort goods, check expiry dates and pack donations into containers for transport to the areas of greatest need.
