Summary

A girl of almost three died after falling into a plastic pool at a family home in Bugaba, Chiriquí; the Public Ministry is investigating.

Details (summary of the article)

Mi Diario reports that a girl aged almost three died after falling into a plastic (inflatable) pool at a family residence in Bugaba, Chiriquí. Her parents pulled her out and rushed her to the Dr. José Félix Espinosa Barroso Hospital, but she arrived in critical condition and doctors confirmed her death shortly afterwards. It is not yet known how she fell in or how long she was underwater. The Public Ministry in Chiriquí will investigate the circumstances of the accident. The case again highlights the drowning risk small children face even in shallow backyard pools, and the need for constant supervision around water at home.
