Details (summary of the article)

The international road cycling race Clásica Internacional Provincia de Chiriquí, a UCI 2.2 event held in Chiriquí province, closed on Sunday 18 October. According to El Siglo, Panamanian rider Roberto González of the Italian team Solution Tech-Nippo-Rali won the second and final stage over a 149-kilometre course. In the general classification the Spaniard Gotzon Martín took the overall victory. The race is one of the province's main sporting events and draws international teams to roads around David and the surrounding districts, which can mean temporary traffic restrictions on race days. The result gives Panama a stage win while the overall title went abroad.
