Summary

Panamá América reports Panama's Roberto González won the final stage of the Clásica Provincia de Chiriquí on 18 October, a 149 km circuit through David, Boquete and Los Algarrobos; the cycling federation says four more races will be held in Chiriquí in November.

Details (summary of the article)

Panamá América reports that Panamanian rider Roberto González (Solution Tech-Nippo Rali) won the second and final stage of the Clásica Internacional de la Provincia de Chiriquí 2.2 UCI on 18 October, covering a 149 km closed circuit through the David, Boquete and Los Algarrobos areas in 3:26:48. Spain's Gotzon Martín (Euskaltel-Euskadi) was second on the stage and took the overall title in 7:04:38, 21 seconds ahead of González and 33 ahead of Chiriquí's Bolívar Espinosa. Hodei Muñoz won the under-23 category and Martín also took the points classification. The Panamanian Cycling Federation (Fepaci) announced that four more competitions will be staged in Chiriquí during November as part of preparations aimed at the Los Angeles 2028 Olympics; dates were not given. Boquete-area drivers may again see road use by race convoys on those dates.
