A 67-year-old man died after being stabbed late on Monday 2 November near the old Chicho Bar in La Concepción, Bugaba, Chiriquí; his 44-year-old nephew turned himself in to police.

Details (summary of the article)

Mi Diario reports that Luis Enrique Lara Caballero, 67, was fatally stabbed at about 10:45 p.m. on Monday 2 November in La Concepción, Bugaba district, Chiriquí, near the old Chicho Bar. Police and 911 emergency crews responded to an alert about an injured person and found him with knife wounds to the chest and abdomen; he died at the scene. Preliminary information indicates he had argued with his nephew, whom neighbours identified as the attacker. The nephew, aged 44 according to police (neighbours said 42), remained at the scene and handed himself over voluntarily. Police investigation units and the DIJ coordinated with the Public Ministry, and the case is now with the Chiriquí Homicide Prosecutor's Office, which must establish the circumstances and responsibilities.
